iCLA

iCLA, a newly established college in April 2015, is located in Kofu, Yamanashi Prefecture in Japan. It's only two hours away from Tokyo station. Its parents institution, Yamanashi Gakuin, is famous for fostering Olympic athletes over its 70-year history. The establishment of iCLA represents a new milestone: top-notch liberal art college. A Broad, Interconnected, and International Curriculum: CLA offers a wide range of linked and integrated courses. The connectivity of knowledge is one of the defining characteristics of our international liberal arts education. Learning is interdisciplinary. Classes are small. Learning is student-centered, interactive, and multi-directional. Through their journey into our curriculum and active-learning methods, students discover how to link and integrate knowledge. These intersections of knowledge and experience lead them to reach their potential in thinking creatively, critically, independently, and globally (CCIG), as well as entrepreneurially. Campus Life: Students live on campus and form close-knit communities and will form friendships across national boundaries that last a lifetime. They bond with each other and with the faculty.

International College of Hotel Management

Since being established in 1992 in partnership with the Swiss Hotel Association (SHA) and the South Australian Government, ICHM has produced graduates of the highest calibre that now work at all levels of management within the international hospitality industry.

ICHM's unique "One Program, Two Degrees" course prepares you for a career in a wide variety of hospitality businesses. It also equips you with the necessary business acumen to work in a number of other professions outside the industry. The balance of theory and real industry placements provides graduates with a genuine advantage when competing for future employment.

During the academic semesters ICHM students are broadly informed about all aspects of the international hospitality industry, from a basic operational perspective right through to a senior management level within broader social, cultural and economic contexts.

They are then provided with real industry placements within Australia or overseas that allow them to learn the industry first hand beyond the walls of their structured classes. This real world experience is invaluable in helping them understand the theoretical concepts they have learnt within a working environment; it also allows them to build significant industry networks.

ICHM graduates are working globally as supervisors and specialists right through to senior and general managers. A number also work outside the industry in areas such as marketing, IT, human resources and their own businesses.
