

New York 2015

Foreword

By Mark Orrow-Whiting

82 students. 28 schools. 1 Global Orchestra

The Global Orchestra demonstrated just how ambitious Nord Anglia Education is for its students. We invited 80 musicians and two student journalists from around the world to travel to New York with the aim of performing in a professional concert venue after just one week together. The standing ovation that they received from the audience is testament to the way they rose to the challenge.

Over the week we watched this diverse group of young people make friends with each other, gain in confidence, learn new musical skills and explore one of the world's most vibrant cities. Students rehearsed a wide range of repertoire, from classics such as Fauré's Pavane to a new composition commissioned from a Nord Anglia student. A highlight for many was the music, dance and drama workshops at The Juilliard School; an opportunity to experience what it might be like to study the performing arts at the highest level. Benefitting from the talents and expertise of Juilliard will be something that is extended to all our students over time as we begin to implement the Juilliard-Nord Anglia Performing Arts Programme from September 2015.

These photographs bring to life the joy, hard work and achievements of the students who went to New York. They are a reminder of a once-in-a-lifetime experience for a talented few, but also a demonstration of our commitment to providing outstanding opportunities for our students and encouraging them to believe that there is no limit to what they can achieve.

Anglia fever... He is quick to announce his participation and stands tall when speaking about the school. Also, being on his own offered him a chance to demonstrate his maturity for his personal wellbeing and to take responsibility for himself. Lastly, it was an awesome stage for him to share his talents
