Nord Anglia's Global Orchestra: Participants Announced

Hundreds of students auditioned in their schools for a once in a lifetime chance to be selected for the Global Orchestra music summer school in New York.

Nord Anglia Education believes in providing its students with unrivalled opportunities to explore their potential and develop into confident, successful young people. The Global Orchestra will allow young musicians from around the globe to learn from each other, to perform together and to build their creativity and confidence as performers and global citizens.

Culminating in a performance at the DiMenna Center for Classical Music, the summer school will create outstanding opportunities for students to develop their musical skills, knowledge and understanding through rehearsals, workshops delivered by experts and peer-to-peer learning. They will experience the vibrant culture of New York and benefit from a bespoke workshop delivered at The Juilliard School.

We are delighted to announce the 45 instrumentalists and 36 singers who will be travelling to New York in June. All students who auditioned should feel very proud of themselves as standards were high and the selection panel had to make many difficult choices.

We would like to particularly mention those who auditioned on the piano. The level of skill exhibited was astonishing and to share with you just how impressive our students are we have created a short film:

It is not just musicians who have been selected for this incredible opportunity, as we were also looking for students with a passion for journalism. Students from around the world submitted articles or broadcasts covering the auditions process in their school. We are pleased to say that not one, but two students caught the judge's eye and they are both invited to join us in New York:

Hannah Leigh, Year 9, British School of Houston
Margareta Durovcikova, Year 11, The British School Warsaw

You can read and watch their winning entries on the Global Classroom.

Congratulations to all the students who have been chosen as ambassadors for their schools; you are now members of Nord Anglia's Global Orchestra!
